

Foundling Record

Please note: this copy is the master copy. All amendments made to electronic records must be made to this brief following approval from Site Director. In the event of dispute, this brief will supersede unauthorised electronic equivalent. In the event of duplicates, the most recently approved paper brief supersedes all other records.

Foundling No.:	UG-US-0268-1A
Known As:	Meatsnakes, Tannenbaum
Revision Date:	15/06/2014

Category:	Unseelie	Class:	Gold
------------------	----------	---------------	------

Quarantine Procedure:	F0268 can now be stored without additional restrictions, providing that the ambient internal temperature remains below 22°C and the temperature external to the facility does not rise to over 5°C. As it still exhibits small but aggressive instinctive movement, operatives are not to touch F0268 or come within 0.5m. In reduce risks, it is recommended that F0268 be kept external to the Facility. F0268 should be 'watered' with 500ml of high protein nutritional slurry #4 every three days.
------------------------------	---

Entry Procedure:	Interactions with F0268 should be by means of elongated manipulating tools, or shoulder length protective gauntlets.
-------------------------	--

Recovery Procedure:	In the event that F0268 leaves hibernation, it will immediately be reclassified to UI. It should be dissuaded from attacking personnel by means of counterattacking making use of any martial art that incorporates the use of qi/mana/prana energies. F0268 is also drawn to the sound of the consonant cluster 'pft', and this can be used to draw it to specific locations.
----------------------------	--

Description:	As it currently appears, F0268 resembles a small fir tree, approximately 3 foot in height. Its limbs are covered in green spines, reinforcing this appearance. This is not its actual appearance, however, and simply the hibernation measures that it has employed in the cold environment. Out of a hibernative state, F0268 is a serpentine creature with a thick central body and multiple branching fleshy limbs that terminate in toothed 'mouths'. The base diverges into multiple 'tails' that are used for locomotion at speeds up to 10kmph. Its flesh comprises multiple substrate of increasing density. It has no circulatory system that has yet been observed, but the 'flesh matter' has been shown to 'circulate' into the core and back out again. This flech is capable of reacting like muscle, and F0268 is capable of great speed and power if caused to strike. Under non-hibernative conditions, F0268 acts as an opportunistic predator. It is exclusively carnivorous, and will for preference predate on immature or domesticated animals that have not developed an acute sense of danger. It has no visible eyes, so it is thought that it predates using sensitivity to motion. Current speculation is that F0268 is an extraplanar creature that has been forced to adapt to local physics and biology. Certainly, techniques that cause minor planar interactions affect it with almost physical force.
---------------------	---

Date/Place Located:	17/11/2004 Green Bay, WI, United States of America
Supplemental Files:

Authorised By:	H Kefla
Date Authorised:	18/06/2014